Exhaust Tip Cleaning Instructions

Polished Tips

Polished tips should be cleaned regularly using a mild soap and a microfiber cloth. Our polished finish is extremely durable and requires touch-up once every few months on a daily driven car. We recommend using a basic automotive metal polish and a microfiber cloth to bring back the original shine. Harsh cleaners are never recommended; especially degreasers and engine bay cleaners.

Brushed Tips

Unlike aluminum, stainless steel treated with a brushed finish is extremely durable and does not require a clear sealer. Our brushed finish is a deep grain and cannot be smudged or damaged by routine cleaning. We recommend cleaning brushed tips regularly using a mild soap and a microfiber cloth. If necessary, the tips can be touched-up with a fine Scotch-Brite pad every few months. Be sure to use light pressure following the grain. The pad and the tips should be soaking wet. Brushed tips do not require metal polish. Harsh cleaners are never recommended; especially degreasers and engine bay cleaners.

Matte Black Tips

When cleaning your matte black exhaust tips, always use mild soap and a microfiber cloth. Powdercoat is incredibly durable, but is not immune to fine scratches. When cleaned regularly, exhaust soot wipes away with ease. If necessary, stronger cleaners can be used on our powdercoat. Anything that won't hurt your skin can be used without worry. If necessary, use quick detailer or spray wax to deepen the finish of your exhaust tips.

Gloss Black Tips

When cleaning your gloss black exhaust tips, always use mild soap and a microfiber cloth. Powdercoat is incredibly durable, but is not immune to fine scratches. When cleaned regularly, exhaust soot wipes away with ease. If necessary, stronger cleaners can be used on our powdercoat. Anything that won't hurt your skin can be used without worry. If necessary, use quick detailer or spray wax to revive the gloss finish of your exhaust tips.
